

Timber Sales Scheduled by Forest Office

Eight hundred thirty thousand board feet of Douglas fir and other mixed species in the Red Rock tributary of Little Smoky creek will be auctioned to the highest-qualified bidder at 10 a.m. Monday at the Sawtooth national forest offices here, announces Charles I. Daugherty, forest supervisor.

Sealed bids will be accepted prior to the auction. Additional information may be obtained by contacting Daugherty at the Sawtooth forest offices.

Earlier in the week 1,800,000 board feet of ponderosa pine and 300,000 board feet of Douglas fir on the South Boise river were auctioned to the Wendell Mill and Lumber company of Fairfield.

The forest service received $10.10 per 1,000 board feet for the ponderosa pine and $4.50 per 1,000 board feet for the Douglas fir.

In addition, the company must build two and one-half miles of access road into the area and must make a special deposit of 5 cents per board foot for all species for improving the residual stand.

The company agreed to reseed skid trails, log landings and temporary roads to prevent erosion following logging operations.

Tension Rises As Walkout in Timber Nears

SAN-FRANCISCO, June 18 (UPI)—Mounting tension spread throughout the lumber industry today as the deadline for a six-state strike approached with no settlement in sight.

Several score mills already were being picketed by locals which jumped the gun on a general strike call, slated for midnight Sunday.

150,000 Could Strike

If a general strike takes place, it could involve 150,000 workers in California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Nevada. The unions involved are the AFL Lumber and Sawmill Workers and the CIO International Woodworkers.

Leaders of the CIO union were to meet in Portland today, possibly to set a date for strike action. A number of AFL locals said they will pull their men out Sunday night.

Rales Demanded

At issue is the unions' demand for a 12 1/2-cent hourly wage increase. The companies have offered to renew last year's contract.

A. K. Tyner, chairman of the county's Republican central committee, said "from the turnout we had tonight we feel strongly and are very hopeful that the Republicans will win again in Minidoka county. We are laying plans for a very successful centennial Republican year."

Candidates addressing the group were Ray Robbins, the county's state representative; L. T. Harper, probate judge; Sherman Bellwood, county prosecutor; David Garner, county commissioner, and Anna Grace, county treasurer.

Theo Johnson, deputy sheriff for the past six years, announced his candidacy for sheriff.

All candidates stated they would stand on their previous records.

SENATE PRECEDENTS

Republican Sen. Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont raised a fine point in urging that Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy be stripped of his committee chairmanship if he does not clear himself of charges involving his personal finances.

The senate has removed committee chairmen at least five times in its history. So there are precedents for this action.

In 1837, following the election of Andrew Jackson as President, the senate itself voted to remove Henry Clay as chairman of the foreign relations committee and Daniel Webster as chairman of the finance committee.

Both these men had opposed Jackson and his policies. President Jackson was, of course, the originator of the political spoils system, mistrusting entrenched power and believing in rotation in office.

Clay and Webster were replaced by two of his own followers in a purely political move.

In the second instance, the Democratic majority caucus of the senate took the action. This was in 1889, when Stephen A. Douglas was removed as chairman of the committee on territories. The reason was that Douglas opposed the policy of President James Buchanan, though both were members of the Democratic party.

In Gen. Ulysses S. Grant's second administration, the Republican caucus this time took similar action by removing Charles Sumner as chairman of the foreign relations committee.

The reason given was that Sumner did not speak to or meet socially with the President and his secretary of state, Hamilton Fish. This made it impossible for him to carry on his duties.

Getting down to more modern times, in 1924 the progressive Republicans were able to block the appointment of Sen. Albert B. Cummins of Iowa to the chairmanship of the interstate commerce committee. He was an "old guard" Republican.

Though his appointment had been decided on by the regular Republican caucus in the senate, the insurgents refused to ratify on the senate floor.

They were able to force a floor vote for three candidates. In the election, Sen. E. D. "Cotton Ed" Smith of South Carolina won, though he was a member of the minority Democratic party.

By still another procedure, the senate military affairs committee in 1941 forced its chairman, Sen. Robert R. Reynolds of North Carolina, to stand aside and allow his duties to be performed by the ranking Democratic member, Sen. Elbert D. Thomas of Utah.

Senator Reynolds was accused of having had close relations with Nazi Germany. This was the era of preparations for World War II. Senator Reynolds was not in sympathy with these moves. He was not fired. The senate committee just took his job away from him, leaving him his title.

These precedents indicate there is a wide variety of methods by which a senate committee chairman may be removed or stripped of his powers. There is no law or senate rule governing the selection of committee chairmen.

But there are long-standing customs and traditions, which have almost the force of senate rules, and which would be difficult to upset.

These practices are based on the seniority system. Once a senator is appointed to a committee, he can remain as long as he is in congress, unless he seeks appointment to another committee, and if his seniority entitles him to bump a junior member. Members of committees are ranked according to their years of service. The senior member automatically is designated for chairmanship unless he is chairman of another standing committee.

Ever since 1884, it has been senate practice to make committee appointments by two committees on committees—one for each party—made up of party leaders. These submit their lists to the senate for approval as a matter of form.

In only one instance—the case of Senator Cummins, cited above—have the lists been questioned or overruled. But the power of the membership is believed to be inherent.

Prior to 1846 the senate elected all committees and committee chairmen by ballot. The members got their rank by the number of votes they received. This practice led to abuses in political trading for the choicer assignments.

All congressional reform efforts to do away with the seniority system and choose committee chairmen on a merit basis have failed.

MOVING TARGET

Public Housing Commissioner Charles E. Slusser told a southwestern conference of housing officials meeting at Santa Barbara, Calif., the other day, that it was nice to escape from Washington every once in a while.

"To remain in Washington for any length of time is a little nerve-wracking," he declared. "All troubles come to Washington, and anyone there all the time gets to feel like a sitting duck. It's a relief to become, at least, a moving target."

"Or to put it another way," Commissioner Slusser went on, "I can sympathize with the old lady who preferred to visit her neighbors."

"When I go visiting, she said, 'I can pick my friends. When I stay home, God only knows who might come a calling.'"

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

WASHINGTON — A rural lobby long identified with the Democratic party has just demonstrated why it is almost impossible for President Eisenhower to keep his promises to save money for the taxpayers. It is an extraordinary laboratory example of "gimme" tactics at Washington.

The organization is known as the NATIONAL Rural Electrification cooperative association, and it is headed by former Rep. Clyde T. Ellis, Arkansas. It presumes to protect the interests of rural electric consumers, individuals and co-operators. In the annual appropriation battles, it has become a formidable body on a nationwide scale.

May Tucker was FORMERLY INVESTIGATED BY THE SENATE

—It was organized by Ellis after he was defeated in the Democratic senatorial primary in Arkansas in 1942, and he receives $20,000 as general manager and Washington representative. Some years ago a senate committee investigated his operations. On demand of Harry Slattery, then REA administrator, and Ellis was forced to disband an insurance company he had formed in the rural electrification field.

Under Claude Wickard, Truman's REA head, the Ellis organization contributed to Democratic successes in normally Republican farm states, with rural electrification as the major issue. Wickard, an Indiana farmer, was generally credited with having won the vice presidential nomination for Henry A. Wallace in 1940. Both Wickard and Wallace were extremely friendly and generous toward the Ellis tactics found general agreement among his colleagues.

CUT RESTORED — The REA appropriations bill reached the senate with a $35,000,000 cut that had the approval of the full committee on agriculture and appropriations after careful scrutiny. But the reduction was restored in a jiffy through an amendment offered by Sen. Guy Gillette, Iowa, Paul H. Douglas, Illinois, and Hubert H. Humphrey, Minnesota. Democrats all, they are up for re-election next fall.

Aiken blamed Ellis for the restoration of the unnecessary funds on the ground that the lobbyist had misrepresented REA's financial position in telegrams to subscribers, members and officials of his organization. A few days before the floor vote, Ellis sent out a typical lobbyist alarm, to wit:

"Impressive that you fire your senators immediately to support amendment to increase REA funds by $35,000,000 and that you contact managers (REA Co-op officials—Ed. note) and others in your state to also wire your senator."

UNEXPECTED BALANCES — Although an REA enthusiast, Aiken denounced Ellis' figures and statements as "erroneous and inaccurate." Ellis failed to point out, he said, that REA had unbalanced balances of $600,000,000, or more than enough to finance current and prospective loan applications. He intimated that Ellis' move was to aid the three Democrats—Gillette, Douglas, Humphrey—in states which the Republicans hope to recapture next November.

Sen. Edward J. Thye, Minnesota, another REA supporter, backed Aiken.

"Nothing could be more damaging," said Thye. "Then to attempt to confuse and mislead the farmers into believing that the REA program is being jeopardized, I wish to command the senator from Vermont for placing these facts in the record."

Aiken also denounced propaganda designed to create the impression that the administration is crippling REA, as Ellis frequently charges. He notes that REA funds in Ike's first year exceeded Truman's final appropriations by almost $25,000,000. He also argued that applications are being handled more promptly.

Rural electrification, which has lighted up once-dark countrysides, increased production and brightened the lives of farmers and their wives, is a major issue in every rural area, including states not listed as agricultural. Aiken does not intend to let the Arkansas Democrat kidnap it for his party—again.

VIEWS OF OTHERS

FARM BLOC HOLDS POWER

The house agriculture committee is going whole-hog in its rejection of any effort to modify the federal farm program with some common economic sense and its reversion instead to the most radical New Deal-Fair Deal subsidy philosophy. Last week it turned down the administration's flexible support plan for mandatory supports for basic crops at 90 per cent of parity and authorized the Brannan plan or a modification of it for butter. And Monday of this week it put provisions into the house farm bill requiring support of dairy products at 80 per cent of parity and authorizing subsidy payments to wool growers to bring prices above the 80 per cent of parity which now is the support level.

The wool subsidy plan, it should be noted, is an Eisenhower-administration proposal. Under the plan, 70 per cent of duties on wool imports would be earmarked for subsidies to domestic growers.

In the farm bill it is drawing up, the house committee is yielding to the demands of the "farm bloc" in congress, which for the past couple of years has been presumed to speak for a politically indispensable key group of the nation's voters. On this presumption, congress persistently bows to the wishes of this farm-bloc. Now the voting will go this year on the floor of the house remains to be seen, but the farm bloc commands the agriculture committee by a consistent margin of about three to one.

This farm bloc ignores both common sense and experience. It ignores, for example, the experience of the gal who sits around waiting for thinness to come upon her. It's much more restful. And, if thinness never comes it's no matter; life is enjoyable anyway, and weight always gives one a topic of conversation.

POT SHOTS

OLD-FASHIONED FOURTH?

Dear Pots:

Some 50 years ago, they tell me on account of how I'm too young to remember back that far, the Fourth of July was an occasion for the roarings of July.

Speakers, parades, fireworks, picnics (complete with the keg of beer), dances and stuff like that.

Folks celebrated the Fourth with the same sort of vigor existing on the date the holiday commemorates.

Remember, this is the Golden Julyear for Twin Falls. Are we going to turn back the clock (and calendar) 50 years for this Fourth of July? Or does everyone jump in his car and take off at breakneck speed trying to kill himself or someone else?

Why don't we just up and ban

the use of the auto in Twin Falls

this Fourth of July?

With that safety precaution, then let's turn back the calendar 50 years and have ourselves a roaring Fourth of July. Even with fireworks, we'd be better off, what with banning the auto for the day.

Remy Niss (Twin Falls)

NO INFLATION ON SUNDAY

I am 25 cents.

I'm not speaking terms with the baker.

I'm too small to buy a quart of ice cream.

I'm not large enough to buy a box of candy.

I'm too small to buy a ticket to a movie.

I'm hardly fit for a tip any more.

But, believe me, when I go to church on Sunday I'm considered

Some Money.

Pots:

The time of year is upon us once again when do-gooders, well-intentioned enthusiasts and merchants generally make a great play for Dad on Father's day.

Well, nothing much, but it often winds up that everybody but the Old Scout himself forgets all about Father's day.

Jitters

HI, MUSCLES!

Dear Pot Shots:

Speaking of weight I like the idea of the gal who sits around waiting for thinness to come upon her. It's much more restful. And, if thinness never comes it's no matter; life is enjoyable anyway, and weight always gives one a topic of conversation.

Critics of the schools are pointing out something that teachers have known, but have not been able to do much about, for some time. The graduates from public schools, and private ones as well, are often unable to write a paragraph in clear English.

On an examination they scowl at any question that asks for an explanation, a discussion, or an analysis. The questions they like are the Yes or No, Right or Wrong kind that requires a checkmark in the right space for an answer. Any demand for composition floors them. Why is this?

Why is it that graduates of approved schools seem to be unable to write a good letter? Why are so few of them able to write a lucid description of a simple situation, even a familiar one? Not that we are asking for literary masterpieces from students. Just simple, clear statements of fact would do. How hard this is to get, the heads of business institutions know very well.

Composition is not a natural gift like blue eyes and curly hair. It is hard come by and requires practice, instruction, experience repeated over and over again. It demands hard work, devoted attention on the part of teacher and student.

Teachers work hard and we know that students accept the work assigned. Teachers teach the subjects that are required by the authorities who set courses they believe the students need. When examiners took to listing hundreds of Yes-No, Right Wrong problems, composition (reports, criticism, analysis of matter) was not so necessary as was storing of facts—facts, regardless of rela-

Ways to Help Youths Listed At Club Meet

Three recommendations for solving the problem of juvenile delinquency were advanced by the Rev. Gordon R. McLean, Great Falls, Mont., featured speaker at a meeting of the Twin Falls Kiwanis club Thursday noon at the Legion hall.

The Youth for Christ guidance speaker urged a good home foundation with the family working and playing together as a team, the teaching of Christian principles in public schools and good youth programs sponsored by all churches.

The Rev. Mr. McLean said the juvenile delinquency problem in the United States today is one of the greatest problems the nation has to face.

He quoted J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation, who has said that unless some radical changes are made, the country is on the verge of the greatest teen-age crime wave in its history.

The average age of the criminal in the United States today is 18 years—down from 28 years one year ago, he pointed out. The Rev. Mr. McLean told Kiwanis members not to misunderstand him, that he thinks American youths are the finest group of young people in the world, but declared a large percentage are not living up to the best moral standards.

He complimented the Twin Falls Kiwanis club on its youth service work and said groups like it dedicated to youth work are needed seriously.

The Rev. Mr. McLean said re-education alone is not the answer to delinquency. "We can not baby the problem, we must attack it."

He noted petitions for a liquor-by-the-drink election are being circulated. "Liquor will bring you revenue which you need to build bigger jails and hire more policemen," he said.

The speaker pointed out business men must convince our political leaders that they too must recognize youth delinquency problems and that it is more important to save the next generation than to win the next election.

The Rev. Mr. McLean was introduced by the Rev. Eugene Crow, program chairman.

Howard Buswell, East Whittier, Calif., was a visiting Kiwanian. Guests were Vaughn Nannen, Twin Falls; L. P. Love, Boise and Boyd Pocatello.

Housing Program Agreement Likely

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—A possible compromise on President Eisenhower's public housing program shaped up yesterday when the house agreed to talk it over with the senate.

The house voted 211-176 to strip all public housing authority out of the President's general housing bill when it passed the measure on April 2.

The senate took an opposite tack and voted 66-16 on June 3 to give Eisenhower just what he asked for—authority to build 140,000 new units of low-rent public housing during the next four years, at the rate of 35,000 units a year.

House leaders predicted the final outcome may be a one, or possibly two-year program of 35,000 units a year. This would give congress a chance to review the whole question again in a year or two.

Senator Plans to Hold Red Inquiry

WASHINGTON, June 18 (AP)—Sen. Herman Welker, R., Ida., a member of the senate internal security subcommittee, is planning a west-coast inquiry on infiltration of communists from Latin America in the guise of setbacks.

Welker said Sen. Pat McCarran, D., Nev., another subcommittee member, will go with him. They probably won't be able to start for several weeks, he added, perhaps not until the end of this session of congress. Subcommittees investigating are already on the job, however.

Welker said the investigation will take in four or five states. He declined to say what bearing the communist situation in Guatemala may have on the inquiry.

Rotary Hears Talk of Demo During Meet

RUPERT, June 18—Gregg Potvin, young Power county Democratic candidate for congress, told Rotary club members Wednesday his voting record, if he were elected to congress, "would not be as good as Hamer Budge."

He noted that Representative Budge had a 95 per cent voting record on Republican party lines, and that he did not believe that any party "is right 95 per cent of the time."

Potvin said that he felt this election year was "not a time for politics as usual," and that he was heartened by bi-partisan trends in the national government.

He said that "Ester Kefauver is right when he insists that the administration tell what its Asia policy is—what it is doing and what it intends to do."

Potvin concluded by saying that he termed himself a "middle of the road Democrat," and that he would favor uses of natural resources for all Idaho, he said, in a "period of economic stagnation compared to other western states," and needs more land under irrigation with a balance of industry.

President Ken Bell spoke briefly of his attendance last week at the Seattle International Rotary convention, noting that more than 8,000 Rotarians and families were registered. Bell was one of the more than 5,000 voting delegates.

Visiting Rotarians were Horace O. Hall and M. L. Tilley, Burley, and John E. Toevs, Aberdeen. Wilbur Bell, Idaho Falls, was a guest of Dr. D. F. Slavin.

Traffic Signal Set for Rupert

RUPERT, June 18—Rupert's first traffic light, a five-way set of signals for the "theater corner," will be installed soon, Mayor Glover Acock advised city councilmen Tuesday night.

The theater corner has a five-way intersection, with the city flagpole set in a concrete base as an added hazard directly in the middle of the area. The corner is almost entirely accident-free, due to extreme caution needed there, but traffic clogs during rush hours.

The council also discussed the parking problem in the business district and decided to await Rupert Chamber of Commerce recommendations before making any changes or decisions.

Mayor Acock was authorized to arrange a site for the July 3-6 carnival, as close to the business district as possible. The street south of Rupert high school was suggested.

To be re-examined at Boise Thursday will be William E. Quinn, Rupert, and Bobby Joe Mills, a transfer.

Mrs. Beeson warned young men must register within five days after attaining the age of 18.
